AFTER THE STORM

Danger is Still Present Even After the Hurricane Has Moved On

Framingham, MA – “Though the hurricane may have passed, many dangers still exist” said Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency Acting Director Ken McBride. “You must continue to remain alert at all times and follow directions from your Public Safety officials.”

- If you have been evacuated, do not return to your home until you have been directed to do so by state or local officials.
- Keep tuned to local Media for information about such things as caring for your household, where to find medical help, and applying for financial assistance.
- Do not become a spectator. Unnecessary travel into the most impacted areas could hinder the efforts of Public Safety officials.
- Drive only when and where necessary. Streets may be filled with debris or flooded. Closed roads are for your protection, in that they may be weakened and could collapse.
- Upon returning, do not turn on any electronic equipment until the electricity has been safely restored.
- Be sure to check all electronic equipment for water damage. If you are uncertain, throw them away. It is better to be safe than risk electrocution.
- Watch for loose or dangling powerlines. Assume any downed wire is a live wire. Be careful when clearing fallen trees with a chainsaw.
- If there is structural damage to home or downed trees in the yard, use care.
- Open doors and windows to ventilate you home.
- Limit your use of the telephone, utilizing it only for emergency calls.
- Use bottled water until local officials have determined the safety of the water supply.
- Guard against spoiled food. If the power was disrupted, food in the refrigerator may have spoiled. Freezers can keep food for several days if unopened.
- Do not refreeze food once it begins to thaw.
- Use generators outdoors, in well ventilated area.
- If there is property damage, contact your insurance agent as soon as possible.
- Take photographs or video of damage. Keep a detailed record of cleanup costs.

-more-

- Do not turn your yard into a dump. Have debris hauled away before it causes additional health hazards.
- Yards that have been contaminated by flooded sewage systems should be disinfected by a liberal application of lime. Children and animals should be kept away from limed areas until the lime is no longer visible.
- If your home, apartment or business has suffered damage, call your insurance company or agent who handles your flood insurance right away to file a claim. The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) administers the National Flood Insurance Plan (NFIP) through the Federal Insurance Administration (FIA). The NFIP makes flood insurance available in communities that adopt and enforce ordinances to reduce flood damage.
- Be a good neighbor. Make sure those around you are safe and have the help that they need.
- Be prepared for a rough time. Recovering from a hurricane is a big job. It is taxing on the body and spirit. The after-effects of this type of disaster on you and your family may last a long time. Consult a health professional on how to recognize and care for anxiety, stress and fatigue.
- Be patient, for there are probably many others with serious damage, as well.

The Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) is the state agency responsible for coordinating federal, state, local, voluntary and private resources during emergencies and disasters in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. MEMA provides leadership to: develop plans for effective response to all hazards, disasters or threats; train emergency personnel to protect the public; provide information to the citizenry; and assist individuals, families, businesses and communities to mitigate against, prepare for, and respond to and recover from emergencies, both natural and man made. For additional information about MEMA and Hurricane Preparedness, go to www.mass.gov/mema.
